Description

Tovenaar is a charming and distinctive 57ft Dutch barge, originally built in 1909 in Sneek, Holland, before being brought to the UK in the early 2000s. With an interior fit-out dating back to the 1950s, she retains much of her traditional European character, offering a quirky and welcoming living space with solid flooring throughout and an internal cabin height of approximately 6ft. Externally, she has recently been repainted and has undergone areas of hull overplating, while a spacious bow storage area reflects her working boat heritage. Offering accommodation for up to four people, Tovenaar combines historic charm with practical features for life afloat.The galley provides a simple yet functional space, equipped with under-counter storage cupboards, a two-ring hob and grill, microwave, kettle and 240V fridge, complemented by a tiled splashback. The characterful lounge is centred around a Squirrel multi-fuel stove with a back boiler, creating a warm and inviting atmosphere. A sofa bed provides additional sleeping accommodation, while shelving offers space for entertainment equipment and personal belongings. Adding to the boat's unique personality is a freestanding Tiki bar, a large storage cupboard with a hanging rail and a life ring from Ross Revenge, the famous Radio Caroline pirate radio ship. A skylight and additional glazing allow plenty of natural light into the living space.The generously sized bathroom features a full-length bath with an overhead shower, a washbasin with vanity storage and a portable toilet, with hot water supplied by a Morco instant gas boiler. Positioned towards the bow, beneath the forward deck, the bedroom
